Voters' Roll 1944

For the Morwell Riding of the Shire of Morwell.

One of our members, Mrs Jean Rodgers of Wallace Street Morwell, has loaned us a copy of the voters' roll for the Morwell Riding of the Shire of Morwell made in the year 1944. Mrs Rodgers explained how and why this copy was issued to her husband, Mr. W. (Bill) Rodgers.

Bill was an electrical fitter working in Melbourne in the early 1930's. In 1934 he went to Yallourn expecting to return to Melbourne when the job he'd been sent to do was complete. However, he found at least one aspect of this district very attractive. Her name was Miss Jean Hunter. So Latrobe Valley became his permanent home and of course Jean became his wife.

When war broke out in 1939, Bill went for a call up check and passed. However, he was told he was exempt because he was needed at Yallourn in his trade. Also like others who were exempted, he was required to do duty as a warden and was given this list of ratepayers to use in case of emergency. Yallourn, being the centre of electricity supply etc., would have been, of course, a prime target if the enemy had got this far. There are 885 names on this roll and with this newsletter there is a copy of the first page.

In future newsletters we hope to include more reminiscences of Mrs Rodgers and other 'pioneers'. At our August meeting several members told of their vivid memories of the tragic fire of 14th February 1944. We think this might be an appropriate time and place to quote Prue Mc Goldrick's account of this in her book 'Steamhorse to Power'.

During the war there was a local holocaust when, on 14 February 1944, Morwell suffered the worst fire in its experience. A strong, northerly wind drove flames from Beck's Bridge, Moe to Morwell and beyond engulfing the Yallourn open cut, cutting off coal supplies and causing the only wartime rationing of electricity. Also in its path was a flax mill on the present site of Budge's abattoirs in Latrobe Road. This was a Government wartime industry which supplied the raw material for webbing belts and equipment of service personnel. A futile bid to save the precious supplies of flax was made by diverting town water to the mill fire but flying, burning material swept aloft and ahead set more fires blazing.

Thirteen people perished that day; their names, commemorated on gate pillars at the Hazelwood Cemetery, are: Harry Cook, Mrs. E. Dyer, Miss Grace Hare, Percy Jones, Vera Jones and Mrs. A. Woolacott of Morwell. Jim Flitton, Charles Tanner and Dick Thomas of Hazelwood and John Robinson of Jeeralang, Frank Walker of Yinnar and William McNair of Traralgon. This disastrous fire also burnt more than a hundred homes including fourteen in Morwell, eighteen at Hazelwood, eight at Hazelwood South, nine at Budgeree, seven at Morwell Bridge and five at Morwell West. Since that day of destruction, bushfire prevention measures have included selective clearing of scrub, opening a network of access tracks and provision of water supply dams. What was once a small clearing in bushland has been increased to 10,000 acres of grazing areas in 1979. Pastures have replaced forests thus reducing fire risk.

OPENING OF RAILWAY TO MORWELL

by: P.J. BARRY

(Member of Australian Railway Historical Society, Victorian Division Research Group)

As no Morwell newspaper was printed at the time of opening, the "Mercury", printed in Sale was the only contemporary newspaper available, and it is from this that the most of the following is taken.

The contract for the construction of the Sale - Morwell section was let to Messrs. Millar and James. For the running of Ballast trains on the newly constructed line, a Government locomotive was hired, and it almost certainly came by sea and river to the wharf at Sale.

On 10/4/77, a contractor's employee riding on a ballast train, was killed at Morwell when a load of timber in a wagon suddenly shifted. Almost immediately afterwards, the engine developed axle trouble, and the wheels were sent to Melbourne by sea, being returned by the steamer "Murray" during the last week of April. Engine driver, fireman and cleaner arrived at Sale on Friday, 27/4/77. A railway banquet was given for the contractors at Sale, early in May, the date being the subject of much local dissent, owing to the Legislative Council election campaign being in full swing at the time. The stationmaster's residence at Morwell was combined with the station buildings, a feature typical of the period, being still the case at other contemporary stations.

The Engineer in Chief, Mr. Higinbotham, arrived in Sale on board the locomotive after inspecting the line on Saturday 19/5/77. The only carriage arrived by the schooner "Warhawk" at the Latrobe Wharf at Sale on 21/5/77; being removed from the hold and transferred to the station on the following day, and on the 23rd May, ran to Morwell.

On 26th May, the assistant Traffic Manager, Mr. Anderson, and a Railways finance man, Mr. Lavater, inspected the line. The Stationmasters for Morwell, Traralgon, Rosedale and Sale also arrived at their locations on this date. Tenders were invited, returnable in 3 weeks' time, for the supply of firewood to the first three of these stations. The original fare to Sale from Morwell was 7/-.

The "Mercury" records Monday, 28/5/77, as being the day on which the first public train ran from Sale to Morwell and return. The train comprised one wagon and the solitary carriage, left Sale at 8.9 a.m. and returned at 12.30 p.m. There was an immediate application for more carriages. With the same make up, a train ran a return trip the following day, departing Sale at 7.6 a.m., passing Rosedale at 7.51 a.m., and returning to Sale at 12.0 pm.

An official timetable of 2 1/2 hours was in force during this week, but as from 1/6/77, the running time for the single journey was reduced to 2 hours. It is this date that the Railways give for the opening of the line.

Requests were soon forthcoming from residents along the line for a return service to Sale, thus obviating the necessity to stay overnight in Sale. This request was soon acceded to, and by the end of June requests were made for a second engine to be provided to handle the traffic offering.

It was suggested that the engine could be brought to Sale by the "Warhawk", towed by the "Murray" as the Lakes Entrance bar would soon permit "Murray" to enter again, and so reach Sale. "Murray" normally operated a weekly service to Port Albert. "Warhawk" was one of 5 schooners operating from the Lakes to Melbourne.

The line between Moe and Morwell was opened for traffic on 1/12/77. Although the contractors for the Bunyip - Morwell section had not fully completed construction by this date, the Morwell - Moe section was complete prior to this date.

No mention is made of the names of the first stationmasters, nor have I been able to find out the classes of engines used on this railway at that time.

The following passenger and goods types were in general use at the time 1875 - 77.

Passengers	Goods	Class + Wheel arrangement
"J" 2-4-0	"P" 0-6-0
"L" 2-4-0 Saddle Tank	"V" 0-6-0
